

Wood Ears

Auricularia americana

Traits: ear like wrinkled cup oriented toward the ground, brown, up to 10 cm in diam.; chewy flesh, redish-brown; no distinct taste; white spores

When: abundant april → nov. In cool weather

Where: on dead wood, mostly coniferous

Note: to be eaten when young; anticoagulant